About the Twin Cities International Citizen Award

The Twin Cities International Citizens Awards honors individuals and corporations, whose work has contributed significantly to international understanding, cooperation, friendship and development. The Awards were first given in 1992, hosted by the mayor of Minneapolis. In 1996, the Mayor of St. Paul joined and in 1997, the Commissioners of Hennepin and Ramsey Counties also became hosts. Today, the International Leadership Institute is hosting this annual international recognition event. The Awards recognize the depth and breadth of the Twin Cities' international connections, concerns and commitments—in business and trade, research and human rights, agriculture and technology, the arts and medicine, education and journalism, and in hospitality and humanitarian relief.

More than an event:

Although the awards are presented at an annual gala event, the event is more than a one-day celebration. The TCICA:

- Serves as a catalyst for communicating among Twin Cities' international organizations and businesses
- Provides an opportunity to showcase the international involvement of the Twin Cities area
- Inspires Minnesotans to enter into international opportunities available in our community
- Sustains the work of the International Leadership Institute, a 501©3 organization, which provides civic education programs and technical assistance to build bridges toward sustainable outcomes for people, businesses, and government.
